

SPAG Definitions

Past, present or future?

When you are writing, you can use words that show if the events have already happened, are happening now or will happen in the future.

- The past tense - used for things that have already happened.
'He was sticky.'
- The present tense - used when something is happening now or when something happens regularly.
'He is sticky.'
- The future tense is used to talk about things that have not happened yet.
'He will be sticky.'

First, second and third person

There are three ways to write a story; these are called the first, second and third person.

First person

When you write in the first person, you put yourself inside the writing by describing how you felt and what you were doing. Use 'I'.

"I saw two messy monsters."

Second person

When writing in the second person, address the reader directly. This type of writing feels personal to the reader. Use 'you' and 'your'.

"When you see a monster, you should tell them to tidy up."

Third person

When you are writing in the third person, the story is about other people. Not yourself or the reader. Use the character's name or pronouns such as 'he' or 'she'.

"He sneakily crept up on them.
Fudge the monster looked scared."

Fronted adverbials

Adverbials are words or phrases that give more information to the sentence.

They tell the reader when, where or how something happens.

"I discovered fronted adverbials, earlier today."

'Earlier today' is the adverbial.

"Earlier today, I discovered fronted adverbials."

A fronted adverbial - when the adverbial word or phrase is moved to the front of the sentence, before the verb. So here, 'earlier today' is a fronted adverbial.

An expanded noun phrase can also add detail by saying where a noun is.

For example, a tree next to the house, some sweets on the floor, the castle by the ocean.

Subordinate Clause

The subordinate clause is the name of the part of the sentence that contains the subordinating conjunction. (Sometimes, you can start the sentence with it - it may even sound better - but this changes the word order.)

Subordinating conjunctions

(A conjunction is a word, or words, used to connect two clauses together. Words such as: 'although', 'because' or 'when'.)

A subordinating clause is a part of a sentence that adds additional information to the main clause. A subordinating conjunction is simply the word/words that is used to join a subordinating clause to another clause or sentence.

The subordinating Clause needs the main clause to make sense.

Prepositions

A preposition is a word that tells you where or when something is in relation to something else.

Examples of prepositions include words like after, before, on, under, inside and outside.

After walking for miles she rested on a hill.

In this sentence 'after' tells you when she rested and 'on' tells you where she rested.
